The Child asks the Deepest Question

An 8yr old child came home from school one day and asked his Dad "Tell me about God." How would we respond to such a question from a child? We would naturally be able to say much about God: a whole large book speaks about Him – The Bible.

Still, God remains a mystery. Frere Roger, the deceased founder of Taize, once said; "We can only approach the deep mysteries of God. For all of our lives we will not be able to understand. Still, we can come close to Him, and that is enough for our lives." It is a comfort that this mystery has a name- Love. "God is love" is how the First Letter of John puts it. And I can entrust myself to love, even when that love remains a mystery. - Fr Tom
